THE TRANSFIGURATION
AUGUST 6TH

Today we celebrate the occasion on which Christ, as He was beginning to teach His disciples that He must die and rise again, revealed Himself in shining splendor to Peter, James, and John. Moses and Elijah were present, and are taken to signify that the Law and the Prophets testify that Jesus is the promised Messiah. God the Father also proclaimed him as such, saying, This is my Beloved Son. Listen to Him. For a moment the veil is drawn aside, and men still on earth are permitted a glimpse of the heavenly reality, the glory of the Eternal Triune God.

THANK YOU

for allowing Catholic Worker to speak at last weekend's Masses and to receive the second collection. It is so helpful for us, and especially for those we serve, to have this opportunity to ask the good people of St. Veronica's parish for their support of our work with those in need in our community. And as always the response is amazing. Over $3,000 was given at the Masses to assist us in our work! We depend on this generosity to get us through the lean months of summer.

Again, thank you for, as pastor, allowing us to speak at the Masses, it means so much to us.

Thank you,

Peter Stiehler
Director, Catholic Worker Hospitality House

Breaking News from the Vatican – on the “Old Mass” and the “New Mass”

The Tridentine Mass, the Latin-only rite both loved and hated by many Catholics for its -- medieval qualities, is roaring back into use after a July 7 papal decree loosened the rules on celebrating it.

Two traditional priestly societies dedicated to the rite report that priests from all over the country are signing up in droves for week-long classes to learn the rituals and language of the Mass, named after the 16th-century Council of Trent.

Monsignor Michael Schmitz, vicar-general of the Florence, Italy-based Institute of Christ the King, said he has received hundreds of calls from interested clergy.

"This is a nationwide phenomenon," he said. "Many more parish priests and younger priests are interested in learning to celebrate the Latin Mass.

"Whenever the Latin rite is celebrated, you get many young people," he added. "They are looking for something that speaks to the soul, and the beauty of the liturgy is awe-inspiring. The heartfelt presence of God really affects them."

Until Pope Benedict XVI's declaration, called a "motu proprio," the Tridentine Mass could be celebrated only with the approval of the local bishop. One-third of U.S. dioceses had no Tridentine Masses, and most of the others had only one or two per week. Benedict noted in his document, though, that the post-Vatican II Novus Ordo, or Mass of Paul VI, will remain the church's usual celebration.

In the older rite, worshippers must kneel to receive Communion on their tongues; the priest always leads the parishioners in facing east, rather than facing them; and the rite is always in Latin. There are other differences in terms of liturgy, priestly vestments and the manner in which laity take part in the service. Women communicants of the Tridentine mass customarily cover their heads, although it is not mandated.

"The people here really want it," one priest said. "All sorts of prominent people have asked me for it. They are not opposed to the Novus Ordo Mass, but they prefer the 1962 Missal," referring to the rules that Pope John XXIII drew up for the centuries-old Mass.

"It's more reverent, more transcendent," Father McAfee said.
